Planning Staff Briefs City Council On Greenbelt Station Development

by Thomas X. White

At a December 21 council worksession Celia Craze, director of the city's Planning and Community Development Department and members of the planning staff provided briefing on the current state of negotiations between city staff and Greenbelt Station developers. The briefing concerned the revised Conceptual Site Plan (CSP) for the planned development and the more specific Detailed Site Plans (DSP) for the Greenbelt Station South Core development.

The latter plans are tracking alongside the CSP as it is being considered by the Prince George's Planning Board staff. All members of council and representatives of the Greenbelt Station development team attended the worksession.

Craze characterized the briefing as a "prepping" for council's formal consideration of the upcoming plans prior to the Prince George's Planning Board consideration early in the New Year. Craze said that December 2005 and January 2006 have been designated "Greenbelt Station" months for her office because of the intense review activity taking place for the development, especially for the development's South Core.

City staff has been consulting with both the Greenbelt Station

January 9 – Greenbelt City Council considers and accepts APB report on recommended city conditions applicable to the revised CSP and update on development planning schedule.

development team and Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission staff on the proposed plans. Craze wanted council to be fully aware of remaining issues that could require difficult decisions, what she referred to as a "set of staff conditions that will likely be evolving over the next few weeks."

Craze also provided a tentative schedule for planning review milestones that could unfold in January, assuming that the Greenbelt Station developers support a continuance for the Prince George's County Planning Board's consideration of the CSP to January 26.

In terms of the ongoing discussions and negotiations with the Greenbelt Station development team, Craze noted that planning staff has been trying to pay attention to development issues raised previously by council, notably, "Housing choices (style, rental versus owned and affordability), environmental issues and available recreation areas. Some of those issues are becoming inflexible."

Staff Conditions

City staff provided council with its latest draft of the "Staff Conditions" document on December 21. This document listed 61 proposed City of Greenbelt positions applicable to the revised CSP. The focus of discussion, however, was on the so-called difficult issues.

The first of these issues dealt with a so-called "Dernoga" plan for the South Core portion of the plan. Apparently County Council Chairperson Thomas Dernoga has suggested a revision to the CSP for the residential portion of the South Core plan east of the proposed connector road, connecting the South Core with the North Core

Council Debates Historic Status Of Greenbelt Middle School

by Jennifer Sciubba

On Wednesday, December 14 a debate over the importance of history became heated during a Greenbelt City Council worksession called by Jose Morales, the school board member responsible for construction plans. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss plans for the historic part of Greenbelt Middle School when a new building is constructed together with a new elementary school. The planning for a two-school complex is difficult enough but becomes even more complicated when historical areas come into play. The challenge is determining what exactly gives a site historical significance.

There are those Greenbelt purists, like Councilmember Rodney Roberts, who argue that virtually any change removes historical significance from a site and who advocate for preserving Greenbelt in its original form. On the other hand there are those like Mayor Judith Davis, who argue that to keep Greenbelt alive as a thriving, contemporary community, some physical changes must be made to reflect changes in the citizenry. The presence of these opposing viewpoints on one small, five-person council is enough to spark conflict, but compounding the problem is a muddled definition of what qualifies a space as historic in the first place.

The school board representatives and their architect argue that the truly historic part of the middle school is the portion built in 1937, which includes some classrooms and a food preparation area, among other things. The gym, though built in 1945, does not qualify as "historic." However, one school board representative questioned, "Just because something is old, is it actually historic?"

Apparently, while the façade is somewhat in line with traditional Art Deco Greenbelt styling, very little of the interior of the school is original, except for a few doors. And, as the architect pointed out, what exists is not an efficient use of the space. In order to use the building for classrooms a great deal of renovation would need to be done and this work could potentially undermine whatever was historic about it in the first place.

Plenty of Music, Games And Fun for New Year's

This year's Greenbelt New Year celebration is called "A Thousand Stars." Among the stars shining brightly on Saturday evening will be some talented performers who call Greenbelt home. Folksinger Melissa Sites will lead songs at the Community Campfire hosted by the Girl Scouts in Roosevelt Center. She teaches a pre-school music class at the Community Center and enjoyed a stint as music teacher last summer at Creative Kids Camp (CKC). Sites will be joined by storyteller Tim Livengood for the campfire, which the Girl Scouts will light at 7 p.m.

Another CKC instructor, Greenbelter Chris Fominaya, will have two gigs at Greenbelt New Year. He will play Disney favorites in the Sing-along Piano Lounge at the Community Center and will also accompany Camp Cabaret Sings at the Arts Center. The teen performers of Camp Cabaret have spent the entire week polishing their show under the direction of Fominaya, Madeline Bell and Rachel Moore-Beitler.

Greenbelt is fortunate to be the home of several fine pianists. Following Fominaya in the piano lounge will be Sondra Holland who will play holiday songs and Stefan Brodd who will play Broadway tunes. Holland has appeared at the city's Artful Afternoons and Brodd has played for a series of popular senior music classes, as well as accompanying many camp shows and youth musicals.

In addition to the teen singers of Camp Cabaret, the Arts Center will feature a special sneak preview of selections from the upcoming production of "Cabaret," which opens January 6. The theater has been configured as a cabaret for the show with audience members seated around small tables.

Young local filmmakers will present short animation pieces at the GAVA/GATE animation showcase at the movie theater. A highlight of the showcase will be the world premiere of two shorts by Joel Mason-Gaines and Caleb Valentich.

Partygoers who want to boost their glamour quotient will find willing assistants at the Wacky Hair Salon where volunteers from the Greenbelt Swim Team will create spectacular 'dos for the evening. Salon clients will be entertained by the high-octane antics of "Improv Asylum," featuring hometown performers Jesse Goldberg-Strassler, Kevin Skolnik and CKC drama teacher Jesse Folks.

Food Offerings

Greenbelt civic groups will be selling food to partygoers. The St. Hugh's Home and School Association will keep the stove hot in the Community Center kitchen, serving up hot dogs, lo mein noodles, egg rolls, nachos and more. GreenBeLT Pride will be selling pizza and sodas at the Youth Center and the Girl Scouts will be making S'mores at the Community Campfire at Roosevelt Center.

Greenbelt restaurateurs will be cooking up a storm as well. Chef Lou will serve desserts upstairs at the Community Center and the New Deal Café will be open all night with a special buffet served from 12:45 to 2 a.m.

The evening will feature some popular imported talent as well. At the Community Center the gym will rock to the beat of "Smooth Pan Sounds Steel Drum Band" and "DC Motors." Just down the hall Frank Cassel, The Banjo Man, will be pluckin' and strummin' for delighted fans. The Kaydee Puppets are presenting three shows: "The Ugly Duckling," "Bunny Tales" and "Little Red Riding Hood." In the Celestial Craft Shop, partygoers will create starry hats and tiaras to wear for the evening.

Dancing

Downstairs at the Community Center ballroom champ Frank Solomon is hosting an all-night Mad Hot Ballroom dance party, with non-stop music and mini-lessons in the hottest moves for couples dancing. Upstairs, singer-songwriter John Hill and magician Magic Mike will perform throughout the evening.

At the Youth Center, the karaoke DJ will be standing by for those partygoers who emerge from the Wacky Hair Salon and Improv Asylum ready for their moment in the spotlight. Giant action games will thrill those whose aspirations take a more Olympic turn.

The New Deal Café will present three musical acts during the evening. First up, at 8 p.m. will be Doug Way who plays American roots music. Next, at 9 p.m. is "The Scrub Pines" who play alternative country. Finally, from 10 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Mike Hamilton and "Don't Blame Us" will play Appalachian and urban traditional music.

The evening's festivities begin at 7 p.m. on Saturday, December 31. Admission wristbands are on sale now at the Community Center, Youth Center and the Greenbelt Co-op Supermarket. Children five and under are admitted free. For information and schedule call the Community Center at 301-397-2208.

Celebration of Christmas Amongst Friends

by Judy Bell

“A Celebration of Christmas,” a concert performed by members of Music Amongst Friends, drew over 100 listeners to Greenbelt Community Church on Sunday, December 18. The performers included Greenbelt resident Muriel Bennett Balzer on piano, with soprano Gina Vikari Moore and baritone James K. Moore providing vocals.

The concert opened with a carol – the Moores singing a vibrant “O Come All Ye Faithful” duet. James sang “O Holy Night,” followed by another duet with Gina, Bach’s “Jesu, Joy of Man’s Desiring.”

The next group of offerings centered on the birth of Jesus with James singing a spot-on version of a little-heard piece called “The Kings,” followed by Ralph Vaughn Williams “The Oxen.” Gina Moore, sounding like an angel, sang “The Virgin’s Slumber Song,” a lyrical lullaby. “Rejoice Greatly” from Handel’s Messiah, an ambitious piece, was ably sung by Gina.

After a brief intermission the concert continued with lighter carols, such as a delightfully-performed, playful duet of “A Winter Wonderland,” Gina singing “White Christmas,” an affectionate “Let it Snow” duet, James on “Christmas Song” and a “Silver Bells” duet, with the singers using their voices in perfect harmony to sound out the bells, as well as the bustle of the holidays, in music.

The concluding selections consisted of familiar traditional carols. Gina exquisitely sang the first verse of “Silent Night” in both English and German. James sang “O Little Town of Bethlehem” with such feeling that I found myself really concentrating on the words.

One of my favorites was John Jacob Niles’ “I Wonder as I Wander” performed meaningfully by James. A rousing “I Heard the Bells” concluded the performance.

And what Christmas concert could be held without some measure of audience participation? The group obliged with “Joy to the World.” All selections were deftly accompanied by Muriel Balzer. I would have enjoyed hearing at least one solo by her.

The concert was another high-quality performance such as Greenbelters have enjoyed in recent years at the Community Church. Bravo!

Muriel Bennett Balzer is the founder and artistic director for Music Amongst Friends, a small classical ensemble dedicated to the high vocal arts. Balzer received a master’s egree in piano performance from the Peabody Conservatory of Music, Johns Hopkins University. She has done extensive solo, chamber and accompanying work throughout the United States.

Gina Vikari Moore was a winner in the Seattle Civic Opera Auditions and appeared in Seattle Opera’s Don Carlos. She has pursued the opera and musical theater stages in both Europe and the United States. In 2003 she was one of few nationally-chosen participants in the American Singer’s Opera Project in New York City.

James K. Moore earned a doctor of arts degree in Vocal Performance from the University of Washington and is currently assistant professor of voice at Howard University in Washington, D.C. He is the winner of several major vocal competitions and has performed extensively with a number of opera companies throughout Europe and the United States as both a baritone and tenor. He is equally at home performing musical theater.

A Review

Audience Enjoys Christmas Concert

by Sabine Hentrich

Music Amongst Friends treated Greenbelters with a variety of Christmas music filling Greenbelt Community Church with sounds of joy on December 18. The artists’ range covered many songs from classical music, such as excerpts from Handel’s Messiah, to more modern, secularized Christmas songs like “Winter Wonderland.”

All three artists presenting this wonderful concert are world-class musicians with impressive resumes. Greenbelter Muriel Bennett Balzer, who, among many other things, has taught at Johns Hopkins and the Peabody Conservatory of Music, played piano for the friends. Gina Vikari Moore, who has appeared in concerts in Europe and throughout the U.S., sang soprano. Lastly, James K. Moore, an amazing singer and actor with a huge resume and a doctorate in musical arts, sang baritone. Moore is the winner of seven major vocal competitions and has had the pleasure to perform Siegmund in “Die Walkuere” and Ford in “Falstaff,” among many other impressive roles.

While the three performed, one could to observe many a dreamy-eyed member of the audience who filled the church’s pews listening in amazement to the beautiful music. The first half of the evening was mostly taken up by classical Christian songs one does not hear much outside of church these days – and hardly ever performed by such wonderful musicians. The friends sang 12 classical songs. Handel’s “There Were Shepherds Abiding in the Field” from the Messiah and “The Virgin’s Slumber Song” by Max Reger were two of them.

Some of the works were performed in a duet and some as solo. Both Gina and James Moore are impressive soloists and one can tell they live to love their music. James Moore sang in English and Italian and Gina Moore in English and German. They are fluent in the foreign languages and Gina Moore made “Stille Nacht (Silent Night)” sound ever so beautiful in German, a language very difficult to sing.

The second half of the evening highlighted popular Christmas songs likely to be heard on the radio, TV and everywhere one goes this season. The singers performed “Let it Snow,” for example, as a cute love song that certainly put one into a happy Christmas mood.

During the last song, the audience joined the three friends for “Joy to the World” assuring the holiday spirit. The only downside to the performance was that some members of the audience clearly left their concert etiquette at home. One person not only interrupted the concert with her cell phone’s musical ring but took the call! Sadly, her cell phone was not the only one to ring during the course of the evening.

Aside from these interruptions, everyone had a great time. Not only the three performers but also the audience clearly enjoyed themselves and had a wonderful evening at the Community Church. This reviewer cannot wait until next year’s round of Christmas songs from Music Amongst Friends. If you would like to learn more about this group, you may visit <http://www.musicamongstfriends.com>.

Holiday Homework Due on January 3

Parents are reminded that every Prince George's County public school pupil, K-10, was sent home for the winter break with homework packets that are to be turned in on January 3. For the second year in a row, the vacation homework is designed to assure children are prepared for advanced placement exams and new state testing requirements that determine whether they will graduate high school, starting with the 2009 graduating class. Parents are asked to spend time themselves during the winter break, to see that students practice the reading and math skills in the vacation skills packets.

The county school board urges parents to call the principal right away if their student does not have a packet of holiday work. Extra homework credit is given as an incentive to complete these holiday assignments.

City Notes

Public works facilities maintenance crews began work on a multi-week project to install stage lighting in the gymnasium at the Community Center. This project requires city staff to work in coordination with at least three outside contractors and staff from the Recreation Department to design and install structural supports, wiring and equipment. The crew also met with representatives from the National Historic Trust, the contractor and staff from the Recreation Department to inspect all of the windows that were renovated to create a list of outstanding work items.

The vehicle mechanics crew repaired several parts on a disabled dump truck.

Recreation department management held five in-house interviews last week for the vacant recreation coordinator position and a recommendation was sent to the city manager.

North Pole forms were filled out, collected and handed to Santa last week for North Pole Calling. Santa made about 35 phone calls to area children.

Late Night was held with eight participants enjoying pizza, swimming and a movie at the Youth Center on December 16.

More than $3,700 has been collected for the Mary Purcell Geiger Scholarship Fund supporting arts and senior programs.

CARES

Masters of Social Work interns Jamie Wilson and Olivia Moore have completed conflict resolution and decision-making groups at Springhill Lake Elementary. There were 29 students attending.

Teresa Smithson and Jamie Wilson completed a 10-week psycho-educational group on self-esteem. Five clients participated in the group.

Girl Scouting Programs Offer Pluses

Girl Scouts can change the life of a girl. Today's young people face problems and challenges many do not imagine. Giving them tools to successfully meet those challenges is everyone's responsibility. During the holiday season, consider giving a girl something that can be beneficial to her and just plain fun. Girl Scouts is a resource for parents who want to get their daughters involved in something that inspires them to accomplish bigger things. The national Girl Scout organization recently re-dedicated itself to the mission of building girls of courage, confidence and character to make the world a better place.

Through educational programs that teach math, science, the environment and literacy, Girl Scouts reaches out to thousands of girls in the community – providing services and opportunities that help them reach their goals no matter what their race, religion or financial status – and they have fun reaching those goals together.

Parents and guardians are encouraged to think about how Girls Scouts could make a change in the life of a girl and take the next step to make that change. It could be a great gift for the season and one that will last for a Girl Scout's lifetime. There are a number of Girl Scout and Brownie troops in Greenbelt. Interested families can call Beverly Smith at 301-441-3814.

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in honor."
— The Holy Qur'an, 27:40

Remember to count your blessings each day. For information about gratefulness from an Islamic perspective, call 301-982-9463 or email searchislam@mail.com or visit www.islamguide.com.

board proposed to council was a concept replicating the design of a combined middle and elementary school similar to one in use near FedEx Field. This design would preserve the historic part of the existing middle school for use as administrative offices and community space. This particular concept keeps the elementary and middle school students physically separate, though housed in one building. The actual school would be located behind the current school and would not touch any part of the existing school. All but the historic part of Greenbelt Middle would be razed.

Though much research was done on this particular concept before it was implemented near Baltimore, Roberts felt that not enough alternatives were being offered to the council by the school board. He hoped to see a design that would incorporate the historic part of the middle school into the new school. The architect, however, said that such a plan would be nearly impossible given the school’s budget because the elevation of the current school is so high and the area behind it so low that expensive and time consuming leveling would need to be done. There was also little support for alternative concepts from the rest of the council.

Instead, Davis, Councilmembers Leta Mach, Edward Putens and Konrad Herling asked that the school board return to the drawing board and bring council several options of where the proposed building could be placed on the site to preserve more of the forest. The concept of a combined middle and elementary school and even the proposed building design seemed to have the majority of the council’s approval but placement remains an issue. Though future enrollment for the school is uncertain, most agreed that building on the current site would not allow a large enough school. Also debated was how the preserved historic part should be used and whether or not administrative offices would be appropriate there.

The architect and school board will be working over the next two weeks to produce the drawings requested by council and will present them in an early January council meeting.

There is an urgent need for blood.

Notice of Amendment to the City Charter Addition of Power to Engage in Collective Bargaining

At its December 12, 2005, meeting, the City Council adopted a resolution to add a new paragraph to the City Charter to empower the City to develop a labor code for the purpose of engaging in collective bargaining with representatives of the non-managerial sworn officers of the Police Department. This action was taken in response to a binding referendum question that the Council placed on the ballot of the November 8, 2005, City election, which permitted the voters to decide whether this change should be made. There were 1,105 (58%) votes in favor of the amendment and 797 (42%) votes against it.

The charter amendment resolution will become effective on January 31, 2006, unless a proper petition to submit the amendment to the voters on a referendum is filed as permitted by law.

Charter Amendment Resolution 2005-4

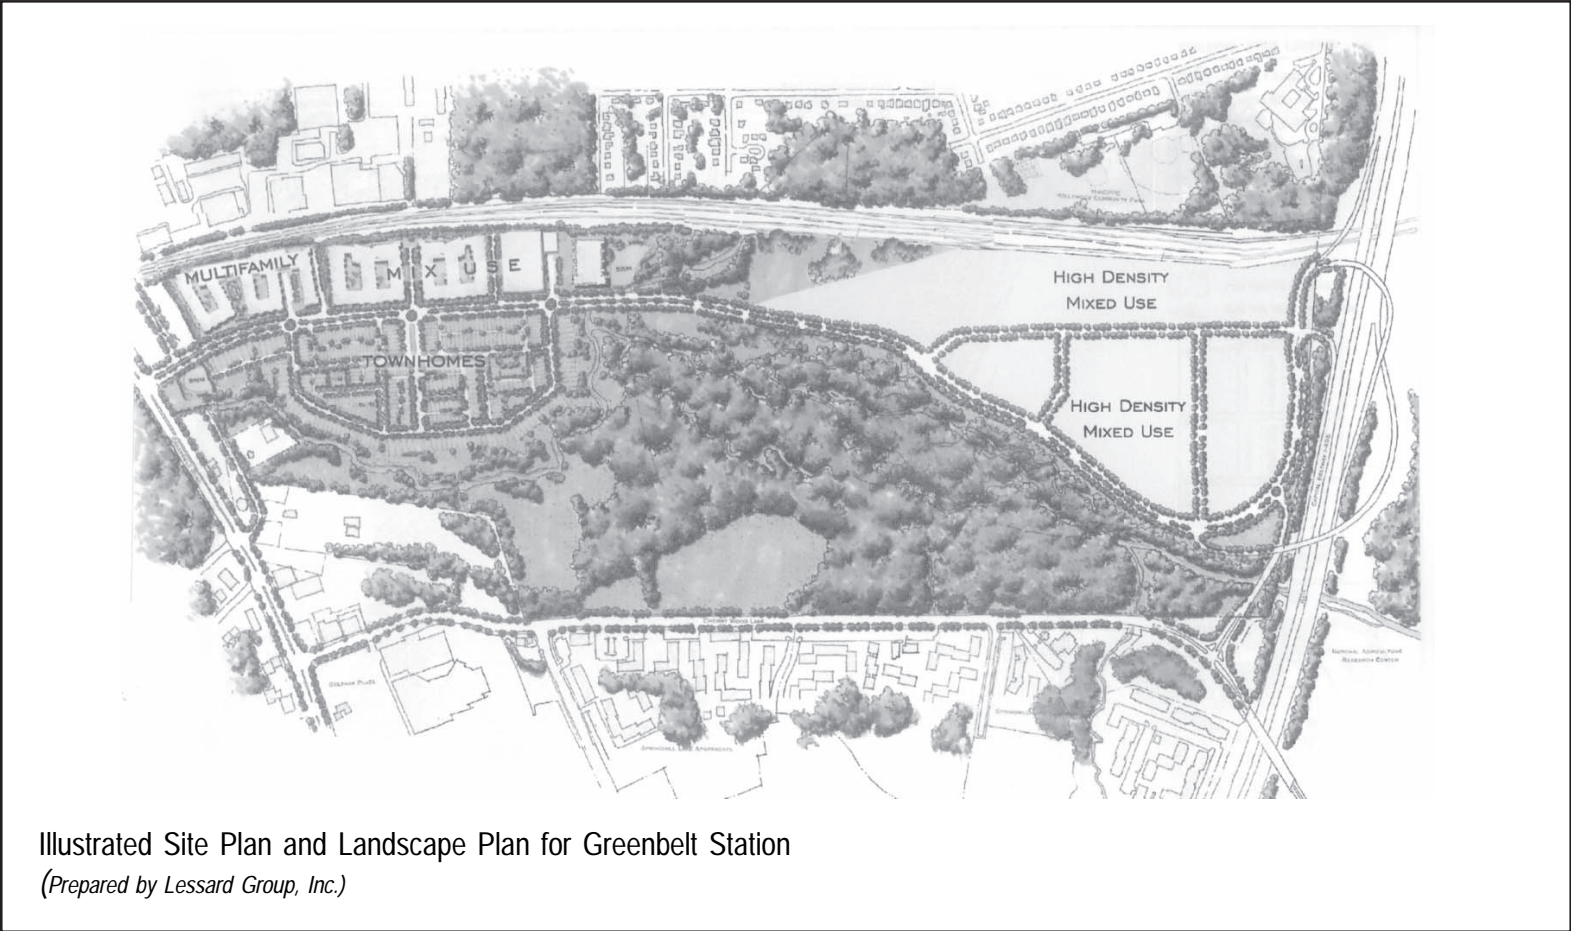

A Resolution of the City of Greenbelt Adopted Pursuant to the Authority of Article XI-E of the Constitution of Maryland and Section 13 of Article 23A of the Annotated Code of Maryland, (1957 Edition as Amended), Title, “Corporation-Municipal,” Subtitle “Home Rule” to Amend the Charter of the City of Greenbelt Found, in Whole or in Part, in the Compilation of Municipal Charters of Maryland (1983 Edition as Amended), as Prepared by the Department of Legislative Reference Pursuant to Chapter 77 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1983, by Amending Section 3, Titled “General Powers” to Add a New Paragraph 22 to Empower the City to Provide a Labor Code to Recognize the Right of Certain City Employees to Organize and Bargain Collectively.

The resolution will add the following paragraph to the Section of the City Charter titled “General Powers”:

22. To recognize and engage in collective bargaining with one or more designated bargaining representatives of non-managerial, sworn police officers of the City of Greenbelt, Maryland, Police Department; to enter into a binding collective bargaining agreement with said representatives; and to enact by ordinance or amendment a system of rules and regulations to govern this process. The City Council shall approve all collective bargaining agreements entered into by the City with a collective bargaining representative prior to their becoming effective. In the event the parties negotiating a collective bargaining agreement are unable to reach agreement on one or more terms of a collective bargaining agreement, the City Council shall have the authority to set those terms and conditions of employment that remain in dispute upon a majority vote.

As required by state law, this resolution will be posted in its entirety for 40 days, until January 21, 2006, at the Municipal Building at 25 Crescent Road. It can also be found on the Greenbelt CityLink Web site at <http://www.greenbeltnmd.gov> under “Code Revisions.” A copy may also be requested from the City Clerk. For additional information, call or e-mail Kathleen Gallagher, at 301-474-8000 or kgallagher@greenbeltnmd.gov.

This earlier prepared Illustrative Site Plan and Landscape Plan for Greenbelt Station depicts the general layout for the proposed development at and south of the Greenbelt Metro Station. In this plan, north is approximately to the right. Running across the top of the property (toward the west) are the tracks for the Metro and CSX lines. The Metro station property is the large area on the right side labeled high density mixed use. Below the development (toward the east) is Cherrywood Lane with the Springhill Lake apartments on the other side of the road and the Beltway Plaza property at the south (left) end of the road. On the far left side is Greenbelt Road with the principal road through the proposed development (connector road) proposed to intersect with it just east of the overpass across the tracks. The connector road will be the main access initially to the South Core. Most of the wooded area shown is the 75.5 acres of state-owned land along Indian Creek.

Greenbelt Station is divided into two sections. The North Core (right side) located on the Metro station property where high-density mixed use is proposed and the South Core (to the left) located on the former A. H. Smith property once used for sand and gravel mining operations and for asphalt and concrete mixing plants. The part of the South Core to the east (below) the connector road is to be developed with owner-occupied townhouses. It is in this area where discussion has occurred to enlarge a small park area into a commons which could be tied to pathways alongside the state property. On the other side of the connector road plans call for apartments and condominiums, some to be located above retail stores. Between the North Core and the South Core is an area of environmentally-sensitive land to be left undisturbed except for the road. The developer plans to begin construction in the South Core first, so planning for that area is further along than for the mixed use North Core.

The city council has adopted resolutions to annex the South Core property and the state-owned land. These annexations will become effective in January if neither owners nor citizens petition the matters to referendum.

in the overall development plan.

Dernoga’s plan would reduce the number of mainly townhouse units in the development east of the connector road in order to create a larger civic open space or commons essentially extending from the connector road to the preserved open space area to the east.

Although the city has long sought such a commons area, the reduction of housing units there would require added density on the west side of the connector road. This change would bring housing closer to the most environmentally sensitive area located to the north.

Further, in order to maximize the overall impact of the enlarged commons area, the city would ask that some additional townhouses be moved to provide a better vista from the commons to the preserved open space to the east. Such a move would integrate this wider opening to a possible environmental interpretive center in the area and connect to a proposed pathway system along the periphery of the protected green space.

The question posed for future council decision is, “Is this trade-off agreeable?”

Recreational Facilities

The commons issue also touched on concerns about available recreational facilities and open space to serve the development. In spite of the large area in the Dernoga plan designated as a commons, city staff feels this space would still not be appropriate for organized sports activities. Staff recommended that it could serve as a “free play” area for informal recreation uses.

In order to address the lack of active recreation facilities (ballfields), staff was looking at the possible upgrading of other facilities in the city to increase their efficiency and the possible purchase of property adjacent to the South Core specifically for active recreation uses.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts again reiterated his belief that the developer should be able to afford and be responsible for providing adequate recreational facilities to serve their development.

Housing Choices

Another issue brought to council’s attention was labeled housing choice/opportunities. This concerns the availability of affordable housing, a diverse housing mix and consideration of so-called active senior housing (age 55+) in the proposed development plan as well as a council concern that marketing to only one population segment could result in a monoculture for the area. Councilmembers used this opportunity to again urge consideration by the developers for the cooperative housing option. They also expressed support for some single-level units (so-called patio homes).

This issue was directly related to condition numbers 32 and 35 in the “Staff Conditions” draft. Council expressed agreement with staff that they should continue to work with the development team on more variety in housing design and mix to increase housing choice and opportunities.

Auto Trips

Another potential issue relates to reduced overall floor area for the development as a result of revisions made in the agreement with the city. Under the formula used by planners, this has resulted in a reduction of estimated auto trips generated by the development. The developer, asking fairness, seeks a comparable reduction in the transportation requirements for the development, thereby reducing their payment requirements.

The city staff position is that there is no such thing as “surplus trips.” Staff considers trip estimates to be planning tools providing flexible trade-offs to balance the number of units and trip generation numbers to provide adequate transportation facilities.

For this issue, the majority of council agreed they were comfortable with the staff treatment of this issue as set forth in condition numbers 1 and 2 in the Staff Conditions draft.

In addition, council argued that other developers not be able to use such perceived “excess capacity” as a way to avoid costs of transportation improvements deemed necessary to serve their individual projects. Staff was directed to work with the development team and counsel to lock up any so-called excess capacity.

Possible Shuttle

Councilmember Konrad Herling suggested that another means of providing access to recreational opportunities for future residents of the development would be increased emphasis on a local transportation shuttle. In response, Assistant Planning Director Terri Hruby recommended that the city get more involved in the Regional Bus Study being undertaken by the Prince George’s County Department of Public Works & Transportation. She urged that the transportation section be made aware of the development planned for Greenbelt West, including the potential redevelopment of Springhill Lake.

Annexation Resolutions

In wrapping up the briefing, council was also updated on the status of the two recently adopted annexation resolutions. Assuming there are no citizen or landowner challenges to the adopted resolutions, the annexation of the State of Maryland property adjacent to the Greenbelt Station development would be completed on January 12. Annexation of the unincorporated areas of the South Core development would be completed on January 26. Staff is also preparing an annexation agreement to be entered into between the city and Greenbelt Station developers.

It is anticipated that the annexation agreement would be established in advance of the actual annexation. In that regard, Craze noted that the latest outline of the city’s Tax Incremental Financing

Red Cross Limits Blood for Hospitals

Appointments at American Red Cross blood donor centers and blood drives were extremely low throughout the holiday weekend and many people failed to show up for their appointments as scheduled, causing inventory of Type O and Type B blood products to fall below a one-day supply. As a result, the Red Cross has been forced to limit distribution of blood products to some local hospitals. Blood donors are needed immediately to eliminate this blood shortage and help ensure that blood will be available for trauma victims, cancer patients and other local patients in need. Appointments are available at all donor centers and community blood drives by calling 1-800-GIVE-LIFE. Platelet donors are also needed; appointments are available by calling 1-800-272-2123.

The Red Cross is asking that members of the community to make it a priority to find an hour of time in their schedule this week to make a lifesaving donation.

As a special token of appreciation, the Red Cross is offering participants a limited-edition “Authentic Lifesaver” T-shirt. Further information about donating blood and a list of Red Cross blood donor centers and community blood drives is available at www.my-redcross.org.

Who Can Give

Donors must be in generally good health, be at least 17 years of age (or in the state of Maryland only 16 years of age with parental consent), weigh over 110 pounds, not have received a tattoo within the past year nor donated whole blood within the past 56 days.

(TIF) commitment for funding of the connector road is approximately $8.4 million, with a generally accepted schedule to allow city financing for the road to be phased according to the level of development that has taken place.

Phase One would be the initial construction from Greenbelt Road up to the northernmost development along the west side of the connector in the South Core. Phase Two would go up to the so-called sensitive area south of the Metro property.

Phase Three would take the road up to the existing Metro ring road. Phase Four would complete the connector road to the North Core development area.

City staff will continue work on the annexation agreement and coordinate with the city’s financial advisor on the TIF details. Staff will also deal with transitioning the authority of the annexed lands from the county to the city, once the annexations are complete.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department.
Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Robbery

December 20, 9:30 a.m., Greenway Center, a woman reported that she was sitting in a vehicle in the shopping center parking lot when she was approached by a man who attempted to open the locked driver's door. He broke out the driver's door window and demanded money from the woman. The man opened the driver's door and the woman ran from the vehicle. He took the victim's purse from the vehicle and fled in a silver 2000 Chevrolet truck, DC tags BH6569. A computer check revealed that the vehicle had been reported stolen. The suspect is described as a young black male, 5'7", 180 pounds with black hair and brown eyes, wearing a dark coat, a black hat and dark pants.

Assault

December 17, 12:39 a.m., T.G.I. Friday's Restaurant, a nonresident woman was arrested and charged with assault, disorderly conduct, trespass and resisting arrest. Police responded to a report of a group of patrons walking out of the restaurant without paying the bill. Police stopped two members of the party as they were attempting to leave. One of them became disorderly, striking the officer's hand away in an attempt to walk by him. The bill was finally paid and the woman was ordered to leave the restaurant. She came back inside a short time later and was again asked to leave. She again came back into the restaurant, shouting profanities at the police. The woman was arrested and transported to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

Police located the youths, who were shouting and running through different apartment buildings. The group was told to leave and began to comply when the youth told them to come back and not to pay attention to the police officer. The youth's actions caused residents coming home from work to gather, afraid to walk past him into their residences. He was arrested and released to a parent pending action by the juvenile justice system.

Schools Budget Survey Is Online

The second annual Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) budget survey is now online, collecting public input on spending priorities for the next school year.

By uploading a formal questionnaire to www.pgcps.org, the school system's website, the Board of Education and Interim Chief Executive Officer Howard Burnett established a tool for connecting with parents and all stakeholders interested in building upon two consecutive years of significant academic gains.

The development process for the fiscal year 2007 operating budget began with three public forums in October and November to receive public input on budget priorities. The Interim CEO proposed a $1.5 billion operating budget to the Board of Education on December 15. The Board of Education will hold three additional public hearings in January and public work sessions on the budget in January and February. The school system online survey will record feedback on budget policies and priorities through January 19.

County residents are encouraged to review the "Quality Schools Program Strategic Plan" and the current school year budget for consideration when answering survey questions. The survey establishes an open forum to harness the public's interest in education and gain input on programs, identify needs, target areas for improvements and align priorities for the 2006-2007 school year.

There will be ongoing opportunities for public participation in the budget process through Board of Education work sessions and open forums scheduled for January 12 at Surrattsville High School in Clinton, January 17 at Rosaryville Elementary School in Upper Marlboro and January 18 at Largo High School in Upper Marlboro. All public forums begin at 7 p.m. Public comments are used during the creation of the budget document presented by the Board of Education to the County Executive for approval.

When logging on to the school system website, participants will be able to review the current year budget, including program improvements and provide feedback by answering a series of questions that include ranking programs in 12 areas as "high, medium or low" priorities. People will see a comparison of Prince George's County public schools to other jurisdictions with regard to needs, including teacher salaries, costs per pupil, test scores and more. There will also be space provided for general comments and to address specific areas that may not be covered in the survey.

Christmas Band Concert Delights Community Center Audience

by James Giese

The Greenbelt Concert Band's annual holiday concert at the Greenbelt Community Center on Sunday, December 18 was well received by friends, family members and Greenbelters in attendance. Unlike previous concerts, the nearly 40-member band played from the floor of the gym rather than the stage, bringing about a greater feeling of closeness between the band and the audience.

Many band members wore Santa Claus hats for the holiday occasion. Six others had antlers and there were a halo, an ornament beret and one miniature stovepipe hat. As usual the band was conducted by Thomas Cherrix. Assistant Conductor Jim Moore directed the musicians in one number.

At first glance, the program, filled with traditional Christmas and Hanukkah music, seemed a repeat of those in previous years. In fact, however, many of the arrangements were new.

I found particularly interesting the sequential playing of three sleighing melodies, each representing a different type of conveyance. "Jingle Bells," this time arranged by Morton Gould, is light and peppy as it represents a one-horse open sleigh dashing through the snow. Mozart's "The Sleigh Ride" represents to me a rather large and heavy conveyance being trudged through the snow by many horses. LeRoy Anderson's "Sleigh Ride" fits in between, giving the impression of a sleigh pulled by two fine horses trotting through the snow.

Bandmember Joan Culpepper introduced each piece of music with interesting program notes. She said that "Jingle Bells" was originally written about going home for Thanksgiving, not Christmas. Livingston and Evans' "Silver Bells" was originally called "Tinker Bells" until the wife of one of them said that the chorus sounded funny singing "tinker bells, tinker bells." The Paul Yoder arrangement of this piece was intricate and different from what one usually hears. It also presented a challenge to the virtuosity of the musicians.

The band veered away from holiday music with "Marvin Hamlisch Showcase," an arrangement by Warren Barker of that composer's most popular tunes,

"The Entertainer" and "What I Did for Love."

It quickly returned to the holiday theme, however, with Gene Autry and Oakley Haldman's "Here Comes Santa Claus," which, of course, was the cue for Santa Claus, in full regalia, to enter the auditorium.

Santa Arrives

"What a surprise!" exclaimed Cherrix. But to those who attend these concerts regularly, it really wasn't. Santa passed out candy canes to members of the audience and particularly to the kids present. Then Santa, who was really tuba player Ed Stepp, read Clement Moore's "The Night before Christmas," this time with the band playing a musical accompaniment written by Newell H. Long.

The Christmas program ended with an Eric Leidzen arrangement of Irving Berlin's "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas." Unlike many arrangements that attempt to do all kinds of variations to a melody, this arrangement kept it pure and simple.

What good is a band without a march? The Concert Band concluded with Sousa's "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company." While at first glance this doesn't seem like a holiday piece, Sousa ends the march with a rendition of "Auld Lang Syne," an appropriate way to end this concert.

After enjoying the hour-and-a-half performance by this talented amateur musical group that has been playing now for around 50 years, members of the audience left uplifted and fortified with the wonderful spirit of these holidays.

The Greenbelt Concert Band is supported by the City of Greenbelt Department of Recreation and rehearses on Mondays at the Community Center. Besides regular performances at city events such as the Independence Day fireworks, the band also performs for veterans groups, hospital patients and for civic and charitable activities. The band welcomes new members.

For information call Tom Cherrix at 301-552-1444 or General Manager David Clarke at 301-384-5674. The band also gladly accepts donations, grants or gifts.

Greenbelt Museum Is Close to Reaching $100,000 Matching Grant Goal

by Jill St. John, Curator

Visitors to the Greenbelt Museum are continually amazed to discover Greenbelt, a thriving, walkable and cooperative community tucked away in the ever-expanding metropolitan Washington, D.C. area. For the past 18 years the Greenbelt Museum has been a gateway for visitors and residents alike to experience Greenbelt's beauty and rich history through tours of an original home, award-winning exhibits, public lectures, educational programs for children and walking tours.

In December 2003 the Greenbelt Museum applied for and received a challenge grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) for $100,000. Over the past several years the museum has seen a dramatic increase in requests for special tours, educational programming and curriculum materials for schools. In response to this need, the museum applied for the challenge grant to establish an endowment to fund an Education/Volunteer Coordinator.

The NEH endowment will fund a permanent Education/Volunteer Coordinator ensuring that the museum will continue to provide exceptional educational programming for all visitors. The coordinator's duties will include training and managing the museum's many volunteers, scheduling tours and developing and implementing both on- and off-site educational programs for school groups.

Curator Jill St. John is showing rapt children how to play marbles.

Since being awarded the grant the Greenbelt Museum has raised over $85,000. The museum is now entering into the final year of fundraising and is now asking Greenbelters to help reach its final goal of raising $100,000.

nations to the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum are fully tax deductible. For information about the NEH Challenge Grant or the Museum, contact the museum curator at 301-507-6582 or museum@greenbeltmd.gov.

The museum has until the end of July 2006 to raise the final $15,000. Because this is a challenge grant every donation received will be matched dollar for dollar by the NEH, creating a $200,000 endowment for the Education/Volunteer Coordinator position.

As a 501(c)3 organization, donations to the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum are fully tax deductible. For information about the NEH Challenge Grant or the Museum, contact the museum curator at 301-507-6582 or museum@greenbeltmd.gov.

GAIL Has Adaptable Equipment Program

Beginning February 14 applications will be accepted for the GAIL Adaptable Equipment Program. The City of Greenbelt has partnered with GIVES, Green Ridge House and Greenbelt Homes, Inc., to offer Greenbelt residents assistance in receiving adaptable equipment for their homes. This new program will offer seniors and disabled participants a choice of two items from the following list: non-skid bath mat, toilet safety frame, raised toilet seat, handheld shower, tub grip bar, smoke detector, shower chair, shower transfer bench.

Items will be delivered and installed by community partners. Participants also have the option of installing items received themselves. The program will offer items to residents on a sliding scale fee. Residents at or below the Federal Poverty Line will receive the items for free. Currently, the Poverty Line is $798 per month for an individual and $1,070 per month for a couple. These guidelines are scheduled to change on February 1. New guidelines will be available at that time. Residents will pay a sliding scale based on 25 percent increments. For example: residents with income of up to 25 percent above the poverty line will receive items at 25 percent of the cost. Residents with income 50 percent above the new guidelines will receive the items at 50 percent of the cost, etc.

Applicants must be residents of incorporated Greenbelt, be disabled adults or seniors 60 years of age or older and require the two items selected to help maintain their independence. Applicants will be required to show proof of gross income, bank statements and residency. Assets may not be greater than $15,000 for a couple and $10,000 for individuals. Assets do not include one's residence or automobile. For additional information about the program call the Greenbelt Assistance in Living Program at 301-474-8000 ext. 2012.
